

CONTRIBUTORS

Robert M. Gorman is head of reference at Winthrop University's Dacus Library in Rock Hill, South Carolina. He holds an undergraduate degree from Florida State University in Tallahassee, a master's degree in history from Georgia College in Milledgeville, and an M.L.S. from Emory University in Atlanta. He has written on collection development, intellectual freedom, library cooperative programs, and British fascism. His professional interests include library instruction, reference services, and library history.

Patterson Toby Graham is a doctoral candidate in librarianship at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, where he serves as an adjunct instructor in the School of Library and Information Studies. He holds an undergraduate degree in social science and history from James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Virginia, and a master's degree in history from The University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. He also earned a Master of Library Service degree from The University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. He has worked as a graduate assistant at the University of Alabama's W.S. Hoole Special Collections Library, and has authored the "CSS Alabama Digital Collection." He is active in library and information science organizations, including the Library History Round Table of the A.L.A.

Gail King is curator of the Asian Collection of the Harold B. Lee Library at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. She holds a doctorate in Chinese literature from the University of Chicago. Her special interests focus on Christianity in China from the 1580s to 1700, the Catholic mission press, and libraries in China and East Asia.

Jean Preer is associate dean and associate professor at the School of Library and Information Science at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. In addition to a bachelor's degree in history from Swarthmore College and an M.L.S. from the University of California at Berkeley, she holds a J.D. and a Ph.D. in American Civilization from George Washington University. Her articles have appeared in Prologue, the quarterly journal of the National Archives, Special Libraries, American Libraries, and Libraries & Culture, and she is currently working, with Elizabeth Stone, on American Library Development, 1900-1976. Her interests encompass the role of libraries and information in society, which includes the access to information and professional ethics.