

CONTRIBUTORS

Donald G. Davis Jr. is professor of library and information science at the University of Texas at Austin, where he has taught and has served as the editor of Libraries & Culture since 1977. He is active in promoting the appreciation of library history through the ALA's Library History Round Table and a series of library history seminars held and published every five years. He holds a bachelor's degree in history from the University of California, Los Angeles, a master's degree in history and an M.L.S. from the University of California, Berkeley, and a doctorate in library science from the University of Illinois, Urbana. A prolific author of articles and book reviews, he is the co-editor, with Wayne A. Wiegand, of the Encyclopedia of Library History (Garland, 1994).

Edward A. Goedecken is the principal humanities bibliographer at Iowa State University, where he has worked since 1993. He holds a bachelor's degree in American history from William Penn College, a master's in American history from Iowa State University, an M.L.S. from the University of Iowa, and a Ph.D. from the University of Kansas. Special interests include citation studies of humanities literature, biographical studies of librarians, analysis of OPAC transaction logs, and the history of Iowa State University library.

Dov Schidorsky is a senior lecturer in the Department of Information Studies and Librarianship at Bar Ilan University, Ramat Gan, Israel. He is the emeritus director of the School of Library Archives and Information Studies at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He holds a bachelor's degree in education and political science from Hebrew University, an M.Sc. in library science from Simmons College in Boston, and a Ph.D. in librarianship from the University of California, Berkeley. Publications include Libraries and Books in Late Ottoman Palestine (Magnes Press of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, 1990), and Studies in Library, Archives, and Information Science (Magnes Press, 1990), of which he was the editor, as well as numerous articles on Israeli libraries. His interests focus on the history of libraries and librarianship, comparative and international librarianship, collection management and development, and the management of library and information agencies.

Priscilla C. Yu is associate professor of library administration and head of the City Planning and Landscape Architecture Library at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. She holds an undergraduate degree from the University of California, Berkeley, and an M.L.S. from Columbia University Library School. She has recently completed a book entitled Chinese Academic and Research Libraries and has authored numerous articles on Chinese library development, collection development, international exchange, and library administration and management.